V2O5/graphene oxide@N-doped carbon (V2O5/GO@NC) hybrid nanocomposites have been synthesized by a one-step hydrothermal method. The morphology, structure and electrochemical properties of as-synthesized V2O5/GO@NC nanocomposites were characterized by X-ray diffraction (XRD), scanning electron microscopy (SEM), transmission electron microscopy (TEM), Brunner-Emmet-Teller (BET) measurements and electrochemical measurements. The results indicated that the obtained V2O5/GO@NC nanocomposites possessed nanoscale framework, large surface area, rich nitrogen-doped functional groups, hierarchical porous and unique structure. In particular, V2O5/GO@NC delivered a reversible capacity of 900 mA h g-1 at the 1st cycle, reaching a high capacity of 370 mA h g-1 after 50 cycles, much improved by the nitrogen-doped carbon matrix. In addition, a superior capacity of 710 mA h g-1 at 2.2 f30f4ceada
