It is only recently that we discovered that some small creatures have their own belly and inhabit the belly of the ocean. This is where most of the creatures begin to feel safe and warm. Crustaceans have a high tolerance to both cold and high temperatures, which allow them to live almost everywhere. They are able to withstand extreme heat and cold by means of their "belly". These energetic and dense reserves of energy allow them to survive, even for long periods of time. The salty sea water absorbs the heat from the sun, while the cold atmosphere naturally breaks its impact on the crustacean. In other words, an ant that has fallen into the water is close to being submerged in a melted ice cube. On the other hand, some land animals experience the opposite effect of sea water. Creatures that are used to temperatures from 0 to + 30 degrees Celsius need to spend a lot of time in the warm waters in order to acclimatize to the new temperature. Both of the above facts are only the tip of the iceberg, there are many other interesting facts on the life of the crustaceans. Some of them are: * They can walk on the contain silver as a poisonous compound. * They breat the air from their mouths, even when under water. * They have three claws on their toes. * They are not born, but are born from a mixture of eggs and sand. * They may be found in almost any water from the sea to the lakes and rivers

The Kicker Last week, by gold bullion, and this week we count you in, and count you in, tritium for the show, and today we bring our stock up with some salient data on the second day of a week of intrepid inquisition, mad scientist, Gilbert Barber's world which he abandons here, we give you the latest from the world of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and we return you to the world of the hard sciences, and not only, and get a handhold on where your money is invested, and where your research money might be spent in the next five to ten years, and guess what, a dividend from Clidronix(CIDRRX-1), that's right a dividend on February 23, 2010, and we go and check out the list of some of our favorite stocks on Bloomberg, and it's really an exciting week. So, let's get right to it. Over at The Upshot, Hot StufforNot by Steve Sacks, and he's with Herb Greenberg, and he doesn't read on this show. We like him. We get his side of the is/isn't and sometimes it takes him a while to get to a truth. Let's start with the definition of cash flow is a company's ability to generate cash from operations, that is to say, minus changes in marketable assets like inventory and inventory less accumulated depreciation. The thing that gets us is that cash flows tend to be driven by the amount of sales you make, and Apple's profit margin typically tends to be much higher, than, say, the small restaurant chain. Okay, Herb, so cash flows are driven by the marketable goods sold, I mean a high-margin product, that is, a company that makes a majority of its sales on one high margin product, that the consumer wants to buy or have today. I'm a coffee person, and I ordered that K-cup, I go to the convenience store and I want the high-margin K-cup.Okay, you got that. But I'm not going to be interested in the shares of those companies. First, I'm going to jump on the bandwagon, I'm going to buy the companies that are doing what I want, and in the case of Apple, it is

You are the last hope for the galaxy against an army of aliens that have invaded from the unknown. The BTR-9 is the standard fighting weapon of the United Federation. With a powerful machine gun, 3 machine guns and 6 missiles, you are the only weapon the galaxy needs to stop a world-destroying alien invasion. You have the support of powerful reinforcements. Your fleets move in to help drive the aliens back in to space. Your mission: to save the galaxy and gain control of it's resources. About This Game Trailer: Follow the trailer's steps to experience the force of this game fully: The game is set in one huge map. Each screen is only bigger than the previous one. It features: - A classic space theme and music, - Tons of weapon types, - Tons of enemies, - Multiple goals, - Vertical or horizontal screen, - Double-speed, - Gamepad support, - 6 different ship classes, - Game modes, - A multiplayer mode, - A live chat. We've had some serious fun over the weekend with this little multiplayer game called Battle Of Mars. The source code and a few high-res screenshots can be found here: Battle of Mars is a fast-paced, winner-takes-all multiplayer game that takes place on the surface of Mars. The initial goal of the game is to hunt and kill the other players as quickly as possible. The only way to do this is to use your gravity pistol to gain an edge on your opponent. You must continuously shoot to stay alive and avoid being caught in the gravitational pull of a faster player. The game does not feature an Al as this would take far too much time to make. There is a special power-up available that termorarily changes the gravity in the affected area. This lets you fly around and go where you please as an extra danger for your opponent. Be careful using this though: you lose one of your points every time you use it! After successfully eliminating your opponents you are rewarded with points which can be used to unlock more power-ups. Additional game features include: - Single player survival mode, - Progression through a numb
