Your own Game Dev Studio Developer Commentary Narration is a collection of recordings created from my experiences and reflections in making Game Dev Studio. The Developer Commentary scenario is a fast paced, cinematic, text based adventure. Making a game can be an expensive endeavor, and even more so when approached with a vision that's often difficult to capture in a video game. Seeing the fruits of my labor, and receiving the positive feedback that the game gained from the people I shared it with, is my greatest reward in this endeavor. Seeing people enjoy my game is the best reward of all. This is your chance to ask me questions, and to hear my thoughts on the game. I will answer all questions you ask to the best of my ability, and I will make some new games to answer those that come to me while I'm writing this, too. The thing is, to do this right, I need to answer those questions that come from you that I can't easily answer in the game itself. Each recording in the Developer Commentary Narration DLC will have its own context, and will stand on its own merit, but there is a certain context that all the recordings have in common. You are in the studio of Game Dev Studio making your first game, and with each recording, you will walk through the floorplan of the studio and through the process of writing each game. You will get to know how the game mechanic works, what Game Dev Studio's design philosophy is, and finally, why it was the way it was designed, and the reason for the decisions that were made in the making of the game. In each recording, you will see the creative development process from how it began to how the final product was designed. Your Developer Commentary Narration is available in 2 parts. Part 1: Intermittent Developer Commentary Narration The intermittent Developer Commentary Narration covers the period from before the game was released to the release of the Windows version. The following topics are covered: Pre-production: How to make a game dev studio on a budget. Development: Learning to make games, all the hard questions answered. Release: Studio updates, problems, and an explanation of the development history. Part 2: The Developer Commentary Narration The Developer Commentary Narration covers the period from the release of the Windows version to the current date. The following topics are covered: Tools: Reviews, gameplay, and research on programming and design for making games. A Process: How

Three and a half years of strategic warfare have passed for the Allies and the Axis since the launch of Operation Torch. The Allies succeeded in their mission and have taken the land of Algiers and Tunis from the French. Meanwhile, the Germans took the Channel port of Calais. The year 1943 has seen some advances for the Allies: they successfully landed in North Africa. They conquered several parts of Burma (Myanmar), Fijis and the Philippines. They also defeated the Japanese forces in India and threatened the capital with an aerial bombing campaign for the first time. These geopolitical events turned the tide in the military situation, and the German situation is not much better than before. In June 1943, the Allies launched Operation Husky to invade the Italian coast and drive the enemy to surrender. The initiative has started to swing to the Allies since then, for two reasons: the Germans did not expect the Allies to attack them, and their own forces are progressively worn out and not sufficient. They need to evacuate the forces of Italy, and with these, those of Germany. And this is where Sicily 1943 comes in. The Allies have landed on the island of Sicily. They have a historical task to control it in a few weeks while the Germans need to retreat in order to hold the port of Messina. The Allies have achieved a land invasion for the first time in history, and the Germans are having to fight to defend a certain strategic area. The game simulates the military, economic and diplomatic interactions between the Allies and the Axis for this unique situation. The victory conditions for both sides have been updated, and a new end condition has been added: the Allies have to hold Sicily and drive the Germans out of the country. By holding Sicily, the Allies will be able to continue to hold Africa and will also create new land divisions on the island, making it very difficult for the Axis to cross and invade Europe with any force. This is the traditional Sicilia 1943 variant, improved and optimized for the game given the different circumstances of the time. An interface that hides the politics has been added, as well as different counters for the air and naval portions of the game. Features: The game focuses on the historical Campaign for Sicily 1943, from July 1st, 1943 to September 8th, 1943, during Operation Husky in Sicily. The game is played over 12 turns of 15 days each, corresponding to one week of the historical campaign. The game is set in World War II: the Allies versus the Axis. c9d1549cdd for Teamspeak Teamspeak is a popular VoIP application used in gaming and online events, among many other things. Hex of Steel has a number of plugins for Teamspeak, and a list of plugins to be released soon. Listed below are all the available ones currently known and working. If you want to contribute additional patches to the official support plugin (not related to this page), you can do so at (registered users only). If you want to report a bug, the most efficient way is to use this link: (Registered users only). You can get a free code to access the full version at Install Hex of Steel - Support Plugin Open TeamSpeak and click Connect to Hex of Steel. All the available plugins can be found in the plugins menu. Note that there may be additional plugins when the next update of the main plugin comes out. Once you are connected to Hex of Steel, installing plugins is as easy as selecting them and pressing "Accept".

Permissions To allow other players to access other plugins or to edit the settings you must use the allow and deny accesss permissions for a connection. The system uses different levels of accesss, which can be viewed by pressing the View Accesss button and then clicking the button of the level you want to see. Each hex of steel connection uses 100% accesss, so it is strongly recommended to use at least that access. To allow players to edit plugin settings, you must use the allow accesss permission to edit the settings of your connection. To add plugins, you must use the deny accesss permission when adding a new plugin. Once that has been done, you will be given access to all the functions of the plugin. You can also protect the settings of your connection with a password by clicking the protect settings button and using the personalize panel to choose the password. This will allow players from the same connection to use the settings of the plugin but only players with that particular password can edit and add new plugins. Implementation Activating By default, the plugins are activated each time TeamSpeak is started. You can deactivate the plugins by pressing the System Settings button on the plugin menu.
