The role of exogenous enzyme supplementation with bakery products. An investigation was conducted into the effects of a supplementary enzymes addition on the nutritional and sensory properties of the bakery products. The study was carried out in the form of a three-way randomised design (blocks of ten) in which groups of bread, biscuits and dough-based products were added of an enzyme mixture containing amyloglucosidase, xyloglucanase, alpha-galactosidase and invertase, while a control group was prepared without enzyme. Analyses of the nutritional composition, starch hydrolysis, measurement of oleic acid content, and sensory analysis were carried out before and after the addition of enzymes. The addition of the enzymes led to a reduction in the starch hydrolysis and consequently a decrease in the soluble dietary fibres. Sensory analysis confirmed these findings and showed that the control group seemed to be more appreciated, while the enzyme-added groups were considered as being of medium and low quality, respectively. Google just confirmed it will host the 2022 Winter Olympics in Beijing, ending months of speculation as the company announced a formal partnership with the city to host the Games. "We are delighted to announce that Beijing 2022 has been selected as the host city for the 2022 Winter Olympics and Paralympics," said a statement posted on Google's official website Thursday morning. "The decision was made by the International Olympic Committee in September after a rigorous evaluation process." The move makes Beijing the first Asian city to have hosted the Winter Olympics in a post-Sputnik era, lifting the specter of possibly having to host an event in Beijing in the post-2019 world. In the final round of voting, Sochi won a ninth summer Olympics in 2013, beating Saudi Arabia. In a sign of Beijing's commitment, the city will also host the 2022 Asian Games, an event with a total of 9,000 athletes competing in sports such as soccer, volleyball, and badminton. The joint bid committee will begin work on projects to integrate the games into the Olympics, including a ring road along the route of the marathon that will link the Olympic stadiums. "We are looking forward to showcasing China to the world and to Tokyo in a different way," said Thomas Bach, president of the International Olympic Committee. "China is a unique and fascinating country and it is our great pleasure to be able to host the next Winter Olympics
