Bilateral sacroiliitis in juvenile spondyloarthropathy. A patient presented with sciatica and bilateral hip pain. Examination revealed bilateral sacroiliitis and sacroiliac joint injection with periarticular inflammatory changes. Radiographs demonstrated destructive sacroiliitis and a small joint effusion. Methotrexate was given with good results. Review of the literature reveals ten cases of juvenile spondyloarthropathy with sacroiliitis. Sacroiliitis should be considered as part of the spondyloarthropathy syndrome in a patient with the clinical and laboratory features of juvenile spondyloarthropathy.Q: iphone - checking for network connection I'm using the iPhone library Reachability for internet connection. I'm also testing if network connection is available using this code: if (![Reachability reachabilityForInternetConnection] currentReachabilityStatus) == NotReachable) { NSLog(@"Internet not available"); } Is this correct or reachability library should check if internet is available before checking for network connections? A: The iOS Reachability Framework provides you with a number of different ways to check if a network connection is available. Check out these other questions for more: Reachability Programming Topics (How to check if the device has a internet connection?) Reachability Reference The other answer suggests using the Reachability class. So, to answer your question, if the Reachability class is being used instead of the Reachability Framework, you could use the information here to just determine if a connection is available. The Reachability class is supposed to be an alternative to the Reachability Framework and provides additional functionality, like WiFi location for example, but the two projects seem to do the same thing. But then, the Reachability class you linked to seems to just be an implementation of the classes in the Reachability Framework. So, to actually answer your question, either use Reachability or use the Reachability Framework. /*===== Copyright (c) 2001-2011 Joel de Guzman Copyright (c) 2001-2011 Hartmut Kaiser Distributed under the Boost Software License, Version 1.0. This is part of a series on meta-analysis based on graphs from the Technical Appendix to P. D. Sackett and the Cochrane Collaboration (2001) Evidence-based medicine: how to practice and teach medicine that counts. JAMA, 286, 771-778. 1. The meta-analysis is the first step in decision making. 2. The contribution of each study to the final estimate should be represented by the relevant effect estimate and the precision of that estimate. 3. The reader should ignore the interpretation of results in the meta-analysis and focus on the implications of the results of the individual studies. 4. It is not possible to compute an overall summary effect for all participants. Separate summary estimates for different subgroups or primary outcomes that were prespecified in the original protocol are a useful alternative for patients and clinicians. any state or federal law claims that may be asserted by the plaintiff. See Sanchez v. Canon U.S.A., Inc., 138 F.3d 1053, 1057 (7th Cir.1998). Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1981 and § 1981a, a plaintiff alleging racial discrimination in employment may assert a claim against the employer or its agents or employees. See Flowers v. Thomas, 954 F.Supp. 626, 634 (D.Md.1997); Washington v. County of Rockcastle, 869 F.Supp. 915, 922 (W.D.Tenn.1994). The plaintiff alleges that she was subject to a hostile work environment created by the actions of her supervisors and coworkers. In order to prevail on a claim of a hostile work environment on the basis of race, the plaintiff must establish that the conduct which forms the basis of the claim: (1) was unwelcome; (2) was based upon the plaintiff's race; (3) was sufficiently severe or pervasive to alter the conditions of the plaintiff's employment and create an abusive atmosphere; and (4) was imputable on some factual basis to the employer. Chambers v. American Trans Air, Inc., 17 F.3d 998, 1003 (7th Cir.1994); Meritor Savings Bank, FSB v. Vinson, 477 U.S. 57, 67, 106 S.Ct. 2399, 91 L.Ed.2d 49 (1986). If the conduct was imputable to the employer, then the employer is equally liable for it. Jenson v. Evele
