“FIFA 22 uses a technology that was well beyond what we could imagine when we first started working on the game. We are happy to be able to share this unique technology with the world and especially for our fans,” said FIFA Chief Creative Officer, Stefan Palković. “FIFA 22 introduces a simulation-generated presentation style that is the same as the videos you play from FIFA’s official YouTube channel.” Palković added that, “From players’ movements in the attacking third, to the goals they score, and everything else along the way, the game boasts the most authentic aesthetic in its presentation and gameplay.” Key Features: Dynamic 3D Mannequin Physics: This new simulation method, combined with the power of Frostbite 3 technology, allows players to see movements and reactions that are impossible to achieve with real players. With this formula, the game is able to better simulate the true football experience. FIFA ZONE – Interactive Tutorials: Train with the game’s various modes, from tutorial-style challenges to fully-fledged competitive matches. Learn skills from over 45 different tutorial classes, with a distinct focus on passing, dribbling and shooting. FIFA 21 PowerStick: A new FIFA-specific peripheral device makes passing, shooting and general movement easy, and even lets you respond to things like shots or tackles with your stick, so you can play the match the way you want to play it. Not only will it help you train, it will also make it easier to aim your shooting and dribbling while on the move. FIFA Body Volume II: The latest generation of FIFA’s Player Impact Engine makes it possible to show the pressure a player exerts on the ball, something that wasn’t possible until FIFA 21. The strength of the player and the pressure they exert is clearly displayed by the size and weight of their torso. FIFA 21 Switch: A new gameplay feature lets you play FIFA with a single thumb on the right analogue stick, switching between control schemes for single-button passing and precise passing at the expense of dribbling. In FIFA 22, you can find out more about the upcoming FIFA 22 release by visiting www.FIFA.com/2021 or by following us on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram.
