Bursae of Fabricius of chickens from 14 commercial farms were examined for staphylococci. A total of 386 bursae were cultured for staphylococci. The overall recovery rate was 55 per cent and S. aureus was isolated from 137 (34 per cent) of 386 samples. For methicillin-resistant S. aureus, oxacillin and vancomycin resistance rates were 36.8 per cent (55/154) and 16.9 per cent (27/154), respectively. All isolates recovered were considered MRSA by the disc diffusion method. The phenotypically MRSA were studied by multiplex PCR in order to determine the presence of the different alleles for vanA, vanB, mecA and blaZ. Using this method, the presence of the mecA and vanA genes were identified in 32 MRSA isolates. All isolates carried the blaZ gene. The vanB gene was detected in 16 and 16 isolates carried both the mecA and blaZ genes. This study showed a high prevalence of MRSA in commercial farms in Rio de Janeiro, and high prevalence of the blaZ gene, although there was no correlation between the presence of beta-lactam resistance genes and phenotypic resistance to vancomycin.Mr. Singleton's political career has been defined by his ties to the Clintons. In 1988, Mr. Singleton worked on the campaign of his former law partner, Mr. Rodham. In a 1992 interview in his office, he recalled how he met the Clintons. "Bill and I met the night they arrived," he said. "I knew Bill from the 1960s. I was treasurer and attorney for the Arkansas Youth for Bill Clinton's presidential campaign." Mr. Singleton, who was black, was described as a roly-poly man with a warm smile and a drawling southern accent. He was a moderate Democrat with a reputation as a skilled lawyer and lobbyist. When he ran for state attorney general in 1978, he was defeated by Bill Clinton, who at the time was a state senator. But Mr. Singleton was already a familiar face to the Clintons. In 1970, he had joined Mr. Clinton's law firm, Rose Law Firm, and the two became fast friends. Bill and Hillary Clinton moved to Arkansas

Police chief Budi Gunawan said they would begin monitoring the Jakarta gubernatorial election on Thursday. According to security report, the National Police would establish a monitoring team for the upcoming election on Thursday. Pantauan Berita reported earlier that the special enforcement team was joined by the office of the Defense Ministry and National Police leadership. Speaking to reporters, Budi said that the National Police would ensure that the security of the gubernatorial race was supervised. "The National Police will not be issuing access permits for the gubernatorial candidates to go to the West Java area. They have their own special force in this area," said Budi, who also added that the National Police would oversee the security for the upcoming election. The security team, which is made up of dozens of officers, will patrol the West Java Election Agency's (APIB) election process on Thursday. In the next two days (on Thursday and Friday), the APIB will open the gathering of voters and security will be tightened. According to the regulations, the local administration must control public order in all areas where the gathering is taking place. This includes the b7e8fdf5c8
