When I came home, the PC... Re: could someone help me download my session, it appears to have vanished on me There was some kind of useful data in these sessions. If you can't tell what it is, I can't say it will get you any further. If you have the opportunity to ask the dealer for the service record, get it. If you have it, read it and see if it's helpful to you, and how much it's worth. If you have any member number, contact BMWUSA and ask if there's any way they can get you the records. If you have no record - and you're lucky enough to have kept that number - call the dealer and ask for it. Don't make up a member number, or ask for it first, or you'll just get it wrong, or it won't matter anyway. Be prepared to pay for the records, either out-of-pocket, or not. The dealer (typically) has a document somewhere, showing the make and model, and for the year and color of your car. If you really want to, you can tell him or her that you've lost it, and ask for the records. When you've read the dealer's records, and you can determine which service, if any, you
