upon the principal application of the building, and therefore of the timber roof, to the first use to which it is put. This is well illustrated by the case of Metz & Tureu Co. v. Fink, 111 N.Y. 175, where a purchaser of certain land, then under an old house, obtained a patent for the land as a homestead, and after a time erected a frame dwelling upon the land. The court held that the dwelling so erected was held as a homestead upon the principal application of the land to the purpose to which it was adapted. And in that case it was observed that the mere fact that land, to which the right is already acquired, is erected upon under a building, the roof of which is to be removed and removed before the new building can be put in, cannot destroy the character of the land as a homestead, unless the erection is so made as to be inconsistent with its character. The facts of that case were of that character. In our opinion the trial court was right in holding that the right here involved was not barred by the statute.

4. Defendants deny that this contract was subject to ratification by the defendants. They insist that, even if it be assumed to have been the intention of the bankrupt to give this right to the defendants, it is nevertheless void as against the trustee. The assignment as quoted above recites that the bankrupt does "hereby sell, assign, transfer and set over" to defendant the right to take the timber upon any portion of the land sold to him "upon any timber or other merchantable material" growing thereon. It is suggested that the word "hereby" may refer back to the terms "assigns this contract" found in the first paragraph of

That and when they started charging (about 8 months ago) people eventually moved on to YouCast (or some similar thing) At least with uStream the streams are "live" it's just a question of how long you want to wait for a game. craigbox join:2002-05-26 Brattleboro, VT craigbox to oldspice Member to oldspice I give Godaddy credit for all the advertising, advertising is still a great tool. The whole point of encouraging people to watch 'VIP Darts' was so the competitors could get both positive and negative advertising. You crash on a strange planet, think you're dead, but are actually an undetermined amount of years in the future. This game is set in the year 2198. You are part of a group of survivors fighting for survival in what we now call the Ark, a giant space station, an abandoned Nazi city, and a prison for people that seem to just be 'crazy'. The game is set in three different worlds, one in space, another on a prison world, and one on a planet inhabited by 'wild people'. S.T.A.R. Labs is a first-person shooter in which you are given a futuristic AR gun and a launcher. It's really enjoyable, and the 'classic' twin-stick shooter gameplay is excellent. There are other weapons to use, which are derived from space technology. The game includes characters from the film 'Wild Wild West', and has a few moments that get very silly. The word 'space' has been worn out as the dominant term for science fiction, however, so it may not get the recognition it deserves. Redoubt is a fun little game that I had a blast playing. For those that have never played a game like this before, you get to play as a space cowboy. Your goal is to kill evildoers, who, in this case, are wild people that inhabit the planet, which is all that's left of the 'Wild West'. There is a lot of shooting, a lot of swordplay, and a cool space station to explore. Most of the fighting happens with a Sword, but Redoubt gives you other weapons, like a gun, and a launcher. There is also a quest to find a temple, and solve mysteries. Redoubt has it's fair share of shortcomings, but it's still a fun game! In this game, you get to play as Michael Swallow, a woman from the future. It's said that you crash on this planet in 2198, think you're dead, but are actually inside a robot body, in an unknown place, and there's a bunch of brainwashed people trying to kill you. So it basically turns out you're a 'Terminator' hybrid. It's a clever game and a fun one to play. I like the stealth, and controlling a human host. It's a cool concept, and the game lets you play through a fun story that's told through video diaries. The game is made by the people behind 'Space Game Unit
