Eros, o Deus do Amor (1981) - BDrama - As Eros O Deus do Amor (English: Eros, The God of Love) is a 1981 Brazilian drama film directed by Helio Furtado and starring Monica Trypuc, Ricardo Pereira and Sergio Renato. It is the story of a young immigrant girl from a poor family, who had to leave her family and her country to work as an au pair in Rio de Janeiro. She takes a job as a nanny at a rich establishment, where she sees the three children of the young man with whom she is in love. The film is based on the play of the same name written by Vladimir Nabokov. Eros O Deus do Amor (Eros, The God of Love) (1981), a pernicious film, categorically a neorealist film by the Brazilian director, is a combination of the endearment and the hatred of a solitary human being for the man who is aware of being loved, and who abandons her for a woman younger than he. This ethical and political poetic film also deals with a matter of vital economic and ideological importance: the massacre of the poor in Brazil in the 1960s and 1970s. With an intelligent and ironic use of the director's creative imagination, Eros O Deus do Amor combines the literal filmic reconstruction of an historical episode with an homoerotic-exaltated narrative that, in the impossibility of a pure image of reality, articulates our own image. This neurotic love for the beloved can be perceived as a monologue of a young woman, expressing the inner state of the three children of the narrator. The film was released on DVD in Brazil on August 20, 2005. [1] The film was shown in the United States during the 1990s. Download Eros O Deus do Amor free of cost through magnet link.
