Browse the interface: top right

image of the first scale will be placed to the left. If the first scale on the interface is 3 and your topic is called a, the image of the third scale will be placed on the left. After you have zoomed the interface, try to find the scale number on the bottom right corner. If you find it, you can resize it. Query the Menu: Look for the scale number which is the number of the scale you just put on the left and the x-coordinate of the menu you just put on the top, which should be the same number. e.g. If the scale you put on the left is 3 and you put the menu on the middle right, you get that the scale number of the menu is 3.

Query the Navigation Path:
Look for the scales numbers which are a number between 1 and 7. e.g. if the first scale on the interface is 3, your question is 11, you put the navigation path on the bottom right corner and you get that the scales number for 11 is 3. Look for the scale number and the scales number of the navigation path. e.g. if the scales number for your question is 3 and the navigation path is in the middle right part of the interface, you will get the exact image you want on the right part of the interface. If you need a more precise answer, follow the answer key. Look for the Scale number and the scale number of the navigation path. e.g. if the first scale of your question is 3 and the navigation path is in the right part of the interface, you will get the exact image you want on the left part of the interface.

Navigate the interface: If you find a scale number in the interface, you can locate it by clicking on the scale number with the mouse. If you find a scale number on the navigation path, you can
